

The National Institute for Health and Care Excellence (NICE) is currently developing a guideline on Intermediate care and reablement . Intermediate care is split into several areas and this guideline covers the topics of crisis response, home-based intermediate care, bed-based intermediate care and reablement. These collectively aim to help people:

				given the following recommendation (1.3.13) which are legitimate goals of inte support and will often go beyond what most services account of, but not be dictated by, what is available.
